

Sign In

<http://www.urbangardenshare.org/>

There is limited green space for food and flowers in this place we call the urban jungle. Matching homeowners (with garden space) to gardeners (with experience) is the perfect solution for cultivating both food production and community. Condo and apartment dwellers are faced with containers or p-patches as their only prospects for vibrant gardens. Homeowners can be overwhelmed by yet-another-garden-project. Together, we make a great team.

Learn more & sign up or check out the listings.

Create a garden profile

Create a gardener profile

Dig in to the listings

Urban Garden Share pairs together eager gardeners with eager gardens. When neighbors come together and co-operatively grow food, dirt flies and good things happen.

Dig it.

THANK YOU!

We rely on the support and interest of others in our community to continue making improvements to the site. On the horizon? City-wide mapping, garden blogs & more! Thank you to the below sponsors for sharing and supporting the vision! Show 'em some love.

NORTH OF SEATTLE

GARDEN SPACE 1000 - 1500 SQ FT

Sunny & flat backyard in the suburbs - 4 blocks north of Shoreline MAY 23, 2009

GARDEN SPACE 250 - 500 SQ FT

3 raised beds in Shoreline, Wa MAY 10, 2009

NORTHGATE

GARDEN SPACE - 1500 SQ FT Lots of space and sun APRIL 13, 2009

GARDEN SPACE - 1500 SQ FT Lots of sunny space in Lake Forest Park (near Exit 176)

APRIL 08, 2009

GARDEN SPACE - 250 - 500 SQ FT Large Backyard in Lake City/Jackson Park right near golf course MARCH 15, 2009

GARDEN SPACE - 500 - 1000 SQ FT Green heart, black thumb. So unfair. MARCH 11, 2009